MACRO PHOTOGRAPHY

Macro photography is engrossing and productive. Normally there's no time pressure and the results can be stunning, Time can be spent on getting the image right, preparing the scene, selecting the lighting, smoothing out creases specifying parameters - should the result not be perfect, it can all be done again, along with some tweaks - this is a category of photography we enjoy creating.

Photographs at high magnification have a correspondingly shallow depth of field. Precisely controlling the location of focus is therefore much more important than normal. This requires not only artistic decisions about what should be in sharpest focus, but also technical decisions about how to make the most of this sharpness. We use high definition cameras with dedicated macro lenses to produce photos up to 37 Mp. At this resolution our images can be used as murals without the need to stitch smaller photographs together.

We will discuss and agree your requirements beforehand, making certain that we understand your needs. We can then undertake macro photography in studio conditions or on site and provide images in electronic and printed form, depending on your needs.

The skills, patience and craftsmanship required for macro and close up photography can be applied to several other categories, such us "product" "food" and "conceptual" photography. If you want to give your product an advantage in your advertising media - we can do it.
