WEDDING PHOTOGRAPHY

Probably the most important occasion of a bride's life; you will need perfect wedding photographs and we know it. We always like to do a pre-session before the big day to get to know you and provide some images of the preparations. As weddings are classed as events, there is only one opportunity so the importance lies in 1) Getting it right and 2) creating unique memories of the big day; to do this we make sure we have capacity, both in equipment and resources. Video footage is available as well as traditional still shots. Our difference and what we can bring to the event is clarity, definition and style - to achieve this we will involve the couple and immediate family in all our preparations, making sure that we understand your requirements and what you expect.

Wedding photojournalism

As a suggestion; wedding photojournalism is becoming an increasing trend in the wedding industry. It branches away from traditional photography and the intrusion that is involved. Traditional photographers create bridal images that are mostly posed and scripted. This is often seen in "formals," where the photographer takes posed pictures of the entire family and bridal party together. Photojournalism, on the other hand, allows the day to pass by as usual while the photographer captures bridal images without any involvement in the composition of the photograph.

Wedding photojournalism is derived from news photography (where the photographer captures an event like a watching bystander) and sports photography (where one obviously does not pose an athlete in action). Photographers from these fields have filtered into the wedding industry and created a great new approach to capturing your wedding day. Talk to us if you are curious about wedding photojournalism.
